RICHARD JASPER.

A Miser Buries $25,000 in This City.

Detectives and Others Digging for the Treasure.

A Real Romance and How It Has Ended.

Sleeping in Barns with His Horses - Starvin Himself to Save a Few Dimes-His Miserecuted for piracy in the old colonial days of New York without discovering the its of his ill-gotten gains, stories of buried treasure have had a peculiar states, and every once in awhile a secret hoard dating back to Revolutionary days has been unearthed by the picks of laborers excavating chance repairs or new improvements. Expeditions are periodically made at large expense to discover the sunken riches of lost treasure-ships from under the briny sea, and only last winter-ore came to a disastrous end on the shores of Central America. There is no one perhaps since the days of Alneschar who has not had his dreams of finding wealth secreted by others.

Los Angeles is cosmopolitan, and every wave of the great world creates a reflex ripple in her lower depths. So this treasure-hunting mania which permeates the continent at varying times is today practically illustrated in this city.

Some 15 years ago Richard Jasper, an Englishman of ments. Expeditions are periodically made and unknown history, made his appearance in Dixon, Soiano county, in this State. He bought land there and lived in a retired and mysterious way, making no friends, and foliowing no fixed occupation. After living there, an enigma to his neighbors, for some years, he disposed of his land and came to Los Angeles. One sale that he made was of 80 acres, for $5,000; another was made to a man named Swayze. His land was sold partly for cash, but much remained on bond and mortgage, and it is supposed that these securities were deposited in bank in Solano county, where they remain till this day. An Investigation of that—question has been promised by those competent to do it. On coming to Los Angeles Jasper bought a ranch at the end of South Main street, some six miles from the courthouse. Here he led an aimiess, vagabond life, never seeming to work with a definite purpose, yet never lacking money. Not that he spent money or made a display of it, but he made a business of lending on security, at d never was known to borrow. But the singular thing was that he kept not a dollar in the bank, but when payments or loans were to be made he produced the glittering gold, like another Aladdin, from some hidden and mysterious treasure-house of his own.

He lived the life of a miser, and slept in the bank, but when payments or loans were to be made the produced the glittering gold, like another Aladdin, from some hidden and mysterious treasure-house of his own.

IN THE STABLE with his horses. He used to board for a small sum with a neighbor—Mrs. Waldron with whom he was more friendly and civwith whom he was more friendly and civilized than with any one else. Sometimes he would drive her into town with his horses to dispose of her farm merchandise, and on one occasion, when the bank was closed, he dug up from some nook in his prolific ranch $500 in coin as a temporary closed, he dug up from some nook in his prolific ranch $500 in coin as a temporary loan.

Another neighbor of his was a Mr. Wilson, with whom he became as friendly as his nature would allow. He used to sit evenings and talk to him by the hour, but when his own affairs or his money matters were approached, he shut up mute as an oyster. Jasper at this period went back to Solano county four-or five times to collect the payments due on the property he had sold, but what he did with the proceeds no one can tell. One man named strump borrowed $2000 from Jasper. When the general man who made the search accompanied Strump to Jasper's place, the money was produced from some place or other on the ranch. It was the general opinion of his neighbors that he was worth $20,000 to $25,000, acquired in some mysterious pursuit, and that he kept his money buried.

Richard Jasper next to aned some money to a man who lived at Downey, near Gen. Mitchell's place. He foreclosed the mortgage, and went out there to live, but the magnetism of

HIS HIDDEN COIN drew him back, and he soon sold his Downey place and returned to his ranch on South Main street. But the place seemed to tire him with its respectability, and he soon sold it, and moved up to the city soon sold it, and moved up to the city proper.

From this, time he seems to have lived a vagabond life of the lowest kind. He slept in a corral belonging to J. C. Bell, the auctioneer, on Los Angeles Street. Here he slept in the straw, and eat whenever he chanced to find a cheap bite for sale. He lounged around the courthouse steps the faded clothes, and enjoyed the solitude so easily found in a crowd. His moneylending operations still went on, and the repository of his wealth remained unknown. His eccentricity, noticeable away back in Solano county, increased as he grew old and miserly. When at his ranch he used to lock himself into his stable to avoid seeing under the bushes to avoid the gaze of human beings. He had a special antipathy to women, and avoided them by hiding away.

tomato can into the hole. Some time after-ward, when Mrs. Olsen demanded her rent, ne told her to dig there for it, and, knowing his crankiness, she had the hole reopened. There in the old can were $400, from which she deducted her own $20 and gave him

There in the old can were $400, from which she deducted her own $20 and gave him back the rest.

He suddenly disappeared in 1887, and no one knew his whereabouts, but it transpired that he went back to England for some purpose, but whether to bring over more gold or take back some is not so clear.

Finally his exposed and miserable life brought on a consumption, under which he struggled on in his weary way. A female doctor living on Downey street brought him to the Sisters' Hospital, on Bellevue avenue, on July 5th of this year, and he received medical treatment. But it was too late, and he died on July 28th and was buried.

When he came to the hospital he deposited $400 with the Sister Superior, but feeling better soon after, he took it and went up town. He soon came back, but the money was never seen again. At another time he was missed from his room in the hospital, and, after a search, Dr. Kannon discovered him digging in the mud under the trees.

it? and if so, where? Since his death a legal firm employed by a brother and sister of Jasper's in England have commenced a careful tracing of his life in Los Angeles with a hope of locating the missing cash. No one could be found who knew anything of this strange creature's habits except a young man who has in his turn suddenly dis ppeared. Whither has he vanished, and how much does he know?

One thing seems clear, and that is that a goodly sum of money is hidden somewhere, and that it is not likely to be discovered easily. The old corral where he slept had been vainly searched, as have the hospital grounds, and the ranch offers no definity place to dig in. Richard Jasper's booty, like Capt. Kidd's, is hidden somewhere around, but who shall find it?

FATAL BURNS.

Death of Grossman-New Theory as to the Fire. G. Grossman, the man who was so badly burned at the fire on Buena Vista street Saturday night, died at the police station, where he had been removed for medical treatment, yesterday morning at 5:33 o'clock. The unfortunate man suffered intensely, and repeatedly begged some one to kill him and put him out of his misery charm for the popular ear and searches for hidden wealth-have been made by sanguine spirits on the slightest of ciews. Buried crocks of money and jewels were frequently found after the war in the Southern fively easy until about 2:30 o'clock yester-day merting, which he again become very large to a white a secret day merting. lively easy until about 2:30 o'clock yesterday merning, when he again became very restless and partly delificus, when the doctor was again summoned and gave him a large dose of morphine to ease his pain.
About 3 o'clock, while Jailer Clayton was ministering to his wants, he remarked that he was afraid that he was about to lose his mind, as his head felt peculiar, shortly after which he sunk into a semi-comatose state, and never spoke again, death soon putting an end to his suffering. One peculiar feature about the case was the fact that at no time did Grossman evince any disposition or desire to talk about the origin of the fire, nor did he wish his wife and children to see him. In fact, it required some persuasion on the part of the jailer for him to give his consent to have them admitted after they came to the station to see him.
Immediately after his death the Coroner's office was notified, and Grossman's body was removed to Orr & Sutch's, where an inquest was held at 8 o'clock last night.

At the inquest quite a number of witnesses were examined, special attention being given to bringing out any facts calculated to throw light on the origin of the fire, by which Grossman came to his death, but without success, and if he knew any more than he told the physician when he first met him, his secret died with him.

Police Officer William T. Jeffries testified that he was standing on the corner of New High street and Bellevue avenue about 8 o'clock, when he saw a flash like lightning, and the walls of the building fell outward. He then saw that the interior was all in a biaze. He assisted in removing the furniture from the burning building, and saw the deceased run out through the flames and fall down in from of the house. He also saw two coal-oil can in the ruins of the house, one of which had a hole in it. This was all he knew about the affair.

Dr. J. J. Choate, police surgeon, who was called to attend Grossman, said that he saw him between 8 and 9 o'clock. He was then suffering great pain, an Vista street, on the fight of the 8th of September.

One theory of the fire, and one that is gaining ground is that Grossman came home after his work Saturday afternoon, and feeling drowsy, had retired to his room and laid down on the bed to rest, failing asleep. In the meantime his wife and children went up town for a walk, leaving Grossman alons in the house, who woke up during their absence, and groping about the room in search of a lamp, had dropped a lighted in teh into the coal-oil can, which caused the explosion, setting the place on fire in an instant. It is possible that he may in his balt-wakened condition attempted to extinguish the fire, but it is more than probable that he at once ran out, and that the burning oil covered his clothing, which was the cause of him being burned so badly.

The funeral of Grossman will take place at 9 o'clock this morning.

the body of a man found dead in the San Fernando tunnel, returning last evening.
From the evidence brought out, it appeared that the dead man was H. McMichaels, aged 23 years, who has been around Newhall for some time past. John Wag, the watchman in the tunnel, testified that about 7 o'clock yesterday morning, while passing through the tunnel, he discovered the body of a man lying in the middle of the track, having apparently been dragged about 25 feet from the place where he was first struck, a pool of blood and a pair of shoes being found at the first-mentioned place.
He was of the opinion that the man had fallen from a special train that passed north about 7 o'clock, and was instantly killed, and that the south-bound passenger train, which came through shortly after, caught the body and dragged it along the track, scattering the remains as above stated.

John Lahey testified to about the same facts, after which the jury returned a verdict in accordance with their testimony.

A large assemblage of East Los Angelet citizens at Campbell's Hall, on Saturday a great deal of animation. People living along the foothills who subscribed largely along the foothills who subscribed largely to get a supply of water through the Garvanza or Rogers system now find that the works have been sold to the City Water Company, and the water is taken to other parts of the city, leaving the more elevated districts dry.

This state of affairs could be entirely remedied if the city would pipe and sell their water to consumers.

A committee was appointed to wait on the City Council tomorrow morning, to see what could be done for the immediate raths.

that was ever sprung on the American people.

Among the conspirators were some of the chief Democratic ward strikers in this city. They got together after one of Boss Buckley's visits down here, and after a little preliminary talk, they sent for a detective, and told him that some of the best men in the city had discovered that three of the county officers were not what they should be, and must be removed from office by hook or by crook.

"We will attempt to frighten them out by telling them that we have made certain discoveries, which will have to be exposed in case they retures to vacate. faled with the board, and the balance when the resignations are accepted.

"Two of these officers, the County Clerk and the Assessor, are straight as a string, but we will run in another county officer who has been talked about in unfattering terms of late, and we will frighten the two honest ones over his shoulders. We think they will be only too glad to give up when we offer them much more than their salaries will amount to for the rest of the term. "Our scheme is to get them out off office, and as we have a Democratic Board of Supervisors we don't think there will be much trouble to get the board to appoint the county Clerk and County Assessor we can fix up the Great Register to suit ourselves, and if we don't vote every dead man in the county then it will be very funny.

They are in our way, and the wide-awake bosses of the north say that we must capture Los Angeles county if it costs the party $50,000.
"The same thing will be worked in San Diego, and there is no reason why we should not be successful."

THE RESULT.

Before the above scheme could be carried out The Times got wind of it and the whole thing was exploded. But it was not blic until after the detective had made public officers. An attempt was made at that time to trap Mr. Dunsmoor, but the Demo-cratic conspirators failed to dig. up abything against him, and when the above-mentioned cratic conspirators failed to dig up anything against him, and when the above-mentioned officers refused flatly to receive the bribe money, the Buckley imitators sprung another little scheme, which files failed. They attempted to prove that Dunsmoor had in his employ a number of deputies who were employed contrary to law. In this they also slipped up, and now they are sneaking around the country trying to trump up some kind of charges.

Mr. Dunsmoor is preparing documents, letters and affidavits which will show up several of the gang in a manner that would make honest men leave the country between two days.

REAL ESTATE.

The "Times" Review of the Market During the Past Week. There is a somewhat better feeling in the real-estate market as the fall approaches, and it is expected that the next two or three months will see a very marked improvement in the demand for all classes of property. Values are holding up well, and there is no reason to believe that there will not be a very healthy advance all along the line. The total transactions for the past week aggregated $1,104,046, the largest day's business being on Wednesday, when the total reached $255,522, and the lowest on Monday, when it dropped to $121,898, not a single transaction over $10,000 being recorded on that day. while the orchestration forms a magnificent feature. The legend of the Lorelie is well known and the theme of the opera is founded upon the betrayal of "Lenore," the village maiden, her prayers and petitions to the fays of the Rhine to aid her in her revenge on mortal man by granting her prayer to endow her will such beauty of person and voice that all mariners on the Rhine will be attracted to the rock on which she sings her siren song, where their boats are shattered to pieces.

Mendelssohn's Oh, Sons of Art, a short cantata, based upon Schiller's hymns to the artists of Germany, a stately composition, was written for and sung by 3000 male voices at the first meeting of the choirs of Germany and Flanders, at Cologne, in 1844.

"Hail, Bright Abede," from the Tournament of Song in Wagner's Tanhauser, is the well known and popular march, and, rendered with full'shorus and orchestra, will prove a most acceptable number. Prof. F. Bornemann will take the part of the "Landgrave" in this piece.

"Deck We the Pathway to Allah's Throne," from Robert Schumann's Paradise and the Perl, is a graceful ladies' chorus, and will be given with string and cymbal accompaniment.

The glee, "Sigh no More, Ladies," by Stevens, Raff's "Joy in Spring," and Brahm's folk-song "In Silent Night" will afford a pleasing variety. Miss Katherine W. Kimball, a highly cultivated soprano, be recently from Boston, Mass., will sing the part of "Lenore" in the Lorelie.

E. F. Kubel, the secretary, at the Mayor's office, will receive season subscriptions from the music-lovers of this city who desire to encourage the existence of this musical society. Glendale and Pasaden have already announced their intention to send in special trains for the concert, with about 100 visitors from each place. The society will, in their Christmas concert, have as the leading number Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," the remainder of the programme being made up of pleasing and popular compositions.

Independent in that place, and he is after the wrong-doers with a sharp stick. Last Saurday's issue of his paper contained the following comments as a wind-up to a rather tame report of the City Trustees' meeting: "We are of the opinion that the trustees should take some steps to stop the sale of whisky within the encorporate limits of the city. It is a fact, or at least we have been told that a certain individual, who is a resident of this city, is selling whisky by the bint, quart or gallon, and the worst feature is innocent children are made to dish up this damndable stuff. We have been informed that the deathy stuff sold is said the bint, quart or gallon, and the worst feature is innocent children are made to dish up this damndable stuff. We have been informed that the deathly stuff sold is said to be good whisky by the one who sells it, and the boast is that it is no common truck. Now, we say in all sincerity that this business is being carried on in defiance of the law governing the city of Compton. The State of California, and even the United States, is being cheated in the saie of an article that has brought only sorrow and misery to the homes of the poor wife and children of the poor unfortunate drunkard, and the fact that whisky is more dangerous to some people than fire is to others should lead our clizens to act in the matter, and we hope that the City Marshal will act in this matter and do his duty. He is an officer of the law, and the people who elected him to this honorable office expect him to do nothing more than his simple duty, and in this they will sustain him, and this is a part of this officer's duty, to arrest all violators of the law, no matter who it may be. If our Marshal wants names, he can, by applying at this office, receive full particulars, and we here say that it this selling of cheap whisky is not stopped, we will, in our next issue, publish the name of the one selling, and see by what authority he is so privileged, and it seems nothingmore than fair to ask all good citizens to help sustain the law of the land, even if it does not meet with his approval, so that we hope that this will have the effect of stopping this violation of the law."

As soon as Dr. "Andy" McFard, late Coroner of Los Angeles county, who has figured in these columns before, caught sight of the above innocent editorial, he put on his war paint and started out to find the sad-eyed "Bob." The medico was

The Doctor says he will shoot editor Bob on sight if his name ever appears in the Independent.

"TIMES" MISSIONARY EAST-WARD BOUND.

The Trip Overland and Some of Its Incidents-Logic of the Ladies-The Great Plains-The Star of Empire and Steers-In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1, 1888. — [Special Correspondence of THE TIMES.] The route, as every one knows, from the Queen city of Los Angeles to this point is long and tedious. The distance, to be sure, is magnificent, yet the scenery at many points is grand, enchanting and superb, and this, with the luxurious comforts afforded by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé railroad system, helps, in a marked degree, to allay the monotony of the rolling wheels. The company, too, generally to be had on such excursions, is ally to be had on such excursions, is very superior, and at an early stage denote their intelligence by the discussion of subjects, evincing great mental capacity, as we sped on our eastward journey, the ladies in this wise were our best and largest contributors, for in every subject that was taken up they, by their superior will and mind power, held the fort against all comers, and, in truth, put gentlemen to the blush in their knowledge of the rule and government of our common counand, in truth, put gentlemen to the blush in their knowledge of the rule and government of our common country. We pay this tribute to the ladies as their honored right, and are delighted to report that not a few of the ladies of Los Angeles are fully entitled to a large share of the credit. It was immensely pleasing to see and hear them go for the political mugwumps. Those discontented and unbridled idiots who are neither flesh nor fowl and who are a constant source of menace to everybody, fell like sheep before their piercing lances. These truants were depicted exactly as they deserve, and were not even given (because of their perfidy and trickery) a place in the world political. Journalists of all shades of opinion are agreed on this issue, and it was gratifying to hear the ladies of Southern California indorse and even champion our common interests.

But all the while we are wheeling along, and further we are being removed from the balmy breezes and along, and further we are wheeling removed from the balmy breezes and beautiful climate of Southern California. The desert has been traversed, Arizona has been covered, and the iron horse has left new Mexico and Colorado behind, and now man arealy morn we find ourselves on Mexico and Colorado behind, and now on an early morn we find ourselves on the plains of the great cattle-raising State of Kansas. This is one of the largest and probably one of the most conspicuous States of the Union. It was in this State that prohibition and its principles were first promulgated in the West, and it is here they are enacted and enforced till this very day. Many and bitter have been the contests to repeal the law and make malt liquors a marketable commodity many and other have been the contests to repeal the law and make malt liquors a marketable commodity within the State, but every effort in that direction has been a dismal failure. Ladies here, by special legislation, have the right to vote and insist upon their prerogative that entire prohibition shall be paramount in the land. Again they are right, as they generally are, and on the side of law, order and good government. Whether prohibition has been the cause or not we cannot say, but the progress and development of Kansas of late years has been something unparalleled in the history of any western State. Cattle-raising has assumed very large proportions, and is a source of extensive revenue. Millions of acres of public lands have of late years been settled upon and development of the subject of the surface of the surf ions of acres of public lands have of late years been settled upon and developed, great cities have sprung up almost like magic, and from them the commercial wants of the people are well supplied. Her educational system has no superior in the United States, and her newspapers and press are "a terror to evil-doers and a praise to them that do well." Dodge City, Wichita. Hutchinson and Topeka, all commercial centers, are visited in turn.

The climate of Kansas, although perfectly healthy, is, at times, testing and severe, and renders life somewhat hazardous to those of constitutional ailments. There are, therefore, quite a number who think of making California their ultimate home, and are encouraged to do so by the truthful reports of the country and the climate in the Los Angelles Times.
The iron horse still keeps moving along, and, in process of time, lands us safely at Kansas City. This is the most important commercial center we have visited since we left the Golden State.

She commands the trade of the mighty Missouri River, besides every western trunk line of importance brings coffers to her doors. Her progress and pevelopment are a perfect marvel of what American push, industry and perseverence can accomplish. She has now a population of 150,000, and it is safe to compute that she will double her capacity in five years. A week's stay here in the interest of The Times has borne good results, and will considerably augment your circulation, value and importance in this district.

Our mission at Kansas City having been accomplished, we repair by the Alton Railroad to Chicago, and in one coarse are landed safely within the bounds of the great Garden City of Illinois. The country we had passed through and the cities we had visited en route had all their special significance and importance. They had their own national grandeur, and, being peopled by a thrifty, determined race, are sure, sooner or later, to rise in their strength and thus conjecture. By some the excessive warm weather is blamed for the stoppage, and by others, and perhaps with more show of reason, the charge is laid at the door of the coming Presidential combat. Importers hitherto have been timid on the question of purchasing largely abroad, lest the Democrats, if successful, were to commence, tinkering with the tariff, and leave them in the lurch with large stocks on their hands. This, of course, would be the case, and care would be especially taken, as far as the Administration could, to let in the merchants of Republican tendencies as tar as possible. Now, however, the success of the Republican element having been assured, the feeling of large importers on the subject has been removed, and large orders for the coming season's trade have gone forward to the European markets. The arrival of these goods, and the certainty of an early stable Republican government at Washington, will undoubtedly result in good times for us all.

CATARRH.

The term catarrh is applied to a peculiar disorder of the nostrils and adjacent parts, which prevails to an alarming extent and is productive of very serious consequences.

The roost prominent and characteristic feature is a morbid discharge from the head, vurying in its nature at different times.

In some there is an almost constant flow of clear, acrid fluid but oftene geneish-yellow matter is secreted, which accumulates in the nostrils or drops into the theorat, necessitating its frequent removal by blowing the nose or expectoration, and often by both processes. Sometimes patients feel as though their whole head was in a state of rottenness, so great is the amount of matter discharged and so fetid is its odor. The patient is greatly annoyed by the constant dropping into the throat of the morbid matter from the head, and as a recumbent position naturally favors the flow downward, his reat is frequently disturbed from the constant dropping into the throat of the morbid matter from the head, and as a recumbent position naturally favors the flow downward, his reat is frequently disturbed from the head, and read is a constant and show the soft palate, in the passage between the throat and head, adhering to the parts with gluish tenacity. Its lodgment embarrasses respiration and creates a sensation of irritation and uneasiness in the affected locality, which gives rise to crilieve the discomfort by drawing the naucous into the threat so as to eject it by the mouth. This practice, popularly known as "hawking," so bharacteristic of catarrh, and proves as embarrassing to the one affected as it is disagreed by way of the nostrils or throat in lumps of tragments of a deep green tint. In some cases these incrustations accumulate to such an extent as 5 form a requirar plug in the nose, which obstructs breathing and proveses embarrance, being of exact shape of the nasal cavity. The voice is weak, indistinct and husky, or of a nasal character, displaying a sort of snifting quality. Oftentimes there is a continuous hoarseness and discordance. There is also a sense of irritation in the throat, and frequent attempts to clear the parts of phlegm, producing the sound "nem," more or less forsibly. In some cases patients complain of an uncomfortable feeling of fullness, or a choky sensation in the throat, and in others of a distressing and almost constant dryness, for the temporary relief of whick they have to swallow frequently. Others, again, speak of a constant bad or nauseous taste in the mouth or throat. The stomach generally suffers more or less and becomes weak and irritable; the appetite is capricious and nearly always bad in the morning. The patient is languid, unable to perform mental or physical labor with the usual facility, is nervous, depressed in spirits, at times fearful, timid, agitated and inclined to drowsiness and sleep, the memory weakened and permanent impairment seriously threatened.

The mucous membrane soon, becomes morbidy sensitive to unfavorable influences, and in spite of the utmost care becomes affected from the slightest causes. So that a breath of wind upon the linings of the nose or threat becomes productive of a cold, and gives rise to serious disturbances of the respiratory of the state of the serious disturbances of the respiratory of the state of the serious disturbances of the respiratory of the state of the serious disturbances and involving a larger extent of surface than its predecessor. In this manner the difficulty spreads from organ to organ, invading the throat, larynx, trachea and bronchial tubes, until, encroaching further and further, it reaches the finer ramifications of the bronchi, when but a slight impulse is required to send it to the lungs. Catarrh may, and often does, affect other organs in the body, especially those containing a mucous membrane, such as the stomach, bowels, kidneys, etc.

By the employment of proper inhalation in the form of medicated vapor (not steam or direct section upon the diseased surface in the larynx and neasl passages, for air will find its way into the most remote and intricate cavities, where it is utterly impossible to make fluid applications. By these means every case can be cured.

Persons desiring treatment by this system of practice can use the remedies at home as well as at our office, and which will cause no inconvenience or hindrance to business whatever.

"THE DEER HUNT."

T. DE WITT TALMAGE FRESH FROM THE ADIRONDACKS.

The Great Preacher's First Serm in the Brooklyn Tabernacie After His Vacation—A Picturesque and Powerful Discourse.

BROOKLYN(N.Y.), Sept. 9.—[Special.] The great organ, improved and en-larged, rolled out with new power the long-meter doxology at the opening of the service in the Brooklyn Tabernacle today. The great auditorium was thronged and overflowing. The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., has returned from his summer vacation, during which he has spoken in many parts of the country, and shaken hands, he says, with about a hundred thousand people. He closed his tour by a visit to the wilderness in upper New York State, and spending some time ameng the hunters. This morning he expounded passages illustrative of Solomon's acquaintance with natural his-

His text was: Psalms, xlii, 1, "As the hart panteth after the waterbrooks, so panteth my soul after Thee, brooks, so panteth my soul after Thee, O God." The great preacher said:

David, who must some time have seen a deer hunt, points us here to a hunted stag making for the water. The fascinating animal, called in my text the hart, is the same animal that in sacred and profane literature is called the stag, the roebuck, the hind, the gazelle, the reindeer. In Central Syria, in Bible times, there were whole pasture fields of them, as Solomon suggests when he says: "I charge you by the hinds of the field." Their antiers jutted from the long grass as they lay down. No hunter who has been long in "John Brown's track" will wonder that in the Bible they were classed among clean animals, for the dews, the showers, the lakes washed them as clean as the sky. When Jacob, the patriarch, longed for venison, Esau shot and brought home a roebuck, Isaiah compares the sprightliness of the restored cripple of millennial times to the long and quick jump of the stag, saying: "The lame shall liness of the restored cripple of millennial times to the long and quick jump of the stag, saying: "The lame shall leap as the hart." Solomon expressed his disgust at a hunter who, having shot a deer, is too lazy to cook it, saying: "The slothful min roasteth not that which he took in hunting." But one day David, while far from the home from which he had been driven, and sitting near the door of a lonely cave where he had lodged, and on the banks of a pond or river, hears a pack of hounds in swift pursuit. Because of the previous silence of the forest the clangor startles him, and he says to the previous silence of the forest the clangor startles him, and he says to himself, "I wonder what those dogs are after." Then there is a crackling in the brushwood, and the loud breathing of some rushing wonder of the woods, and the antiers of a deer rend the leaves of the thicket, and by an instinct which all hunters recognize, plunges into a pond or lake or river to cool its thirst, and at the same time, by its capacity for swifter and longer swimming, to get away from the foaming harriers. David says to himself, "Aha! that is myself! Saul after me, Absolom after me, enemies without "Aha! that is myself! Saul after me, Absolom after me, enemies without number after me, I am chased, their bloody muzzles at my heels, barking at my good name, barking after my body, barking after my soul! Oh, the hounds! But, look there!" says David, "that reindeer has splashed into the water. It puts its hot lips and nostrils into the cool wave that washes the lathered flanks, and it swims away from the flery canines, and it is free at last. Oh! that I might find in the deep, wide lake of God's mercy and consolation escape from my pursuers! consolation escape from my pursuers. Oh! for the waters of life and rescue As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after Thee brooks, so panteth my soul after Thee, O God!"

I have just come from the Adirondacks, and the breath of the balsam and spruce and pine is still on me. The Adirondacks are now populous with hunters, and the deer are being slain by the score. Talking a few days ago with a hunter, I thought I would like to see whether my text was accurate in its allusion, and as I heard the dogs baying a little way off, and supposed they were on the track of a reindeer, I said to the hunter in rough corduroy: "Do the deer always make for the water when they are pursued?" He said: "O, yes, Mister; you see they are a hot and thirsty animal, and they know where the water is, and when they hear danger in the distance, they lift their antlers and snuff the breeze, and start for the Racquet, or Loon, or If their antiers and snuff the breeze, and start for the Racquet, or Loon, or Saranae; and we get into our cedar shell-boat or stand by the 'runway' with rifle loaded ready to blaze away."

My friends, that is one reason why I like the Bible so much—its allusions are so true to nature. Its partridges are real partridges, its ostriches real ostriches, and its reindeer real reindeer. I do not wonder that this antiered glory of the and its reindeer real reindeer. I do not wonder that this antiered glory of the text makes the hunter's eye sparkle, and his cheek glow, and his respiration quicken. To say nothing of its usefulness, although it is the most useful of all game, its flesh delicious, its skinturned into human apparel, its sinews fashioned into bow strings, its antiers putting handles on cutlery, and the shavings of its horns used as a restorative, taken from the name of the hart and called hartshorn. But putting aside its usefulness, this enchanting creature seems made out of gracefulness and elasticity. What an eye, with a liquid brightness as if gathered up from a hundred lakes of sunset! The horns, a coronal branching into every from a hundred lakes of sunset! The horns, a coronal branching into every possible curve, and, after it seems done, advancing into other projections of exquisiteness, a tree of polished bone, uplifted in pride, or swung down for awful combat. It is velocity embodied; timidity impersonated; the enchantment of the woods; eye lustrous in life and pathetic in death; the splendid animal a complete rhythm of muscle, and bone, and color, and attitude, and locomotion, whether couched in the grass among the shadows, or a living bolt shot through the forest, or turning at bay to attack the hounds, or rearing for its last fall under the buckshot of the trapper. It is a splendid appearance that the painter's pencil fails to sketch, and only a hunter's dream on a pillow of hemlock at the foot of St. set deer with anters inted in pride, or swung down for awful combat. cution, or the spotted bounds of vicissitude, or the pale hounds of death, or who are in any wise pursued, fly to the wide, deep, glorious lake of divine solace and rescue. The most of the men and women whom I happen to know at different times, if not now, have had trouble after them, sharp muzzled troubles, swift troubles, all devouring troubles. Many of you have made the mistake of trying to fight them. Somebody meanly attacked you, and you attacked them; they depreciated you, you depreciated them; or they overreached you in a bargain, and you tried, in Wall-street parlance, to get a corher on them; or you have had a bereavement, and instead of being submissive you are fighting that bereavement; you charge on the doctors who failed to effect a cure, or you charge on the carelessness of the railroad company through which the accident occurred; or you are a chronic invalid, and you fret and worry and soold and wonder why you cannot be well like other people, and you angrily charge on the neuralgia or the laryingitis or the ague or the sick headache. The fact is you are a deer at bay. Instead of running to the waters of divine consolaton and slacking your thirst and cooling your body and soul in the good cheer of the gospel, and swimming away into the mighty deeps of God's love, you are fighting thirst and cooling your body and soul in the good cheer of the gospel, and swimming away into the mighty deeps of God's love, you are fighting a whole kennel of harriers. A few days ago I saw in the Adirondacks a dog lying across the road, and he seemed unable to get up, and I said to some hunters near by. "What is the matter with that dog"." They answered: "A deer hurt him." And I saw he had a great swollen paw and a battered head, showing where the antlers struck him. And the probability is that some of you might give a mighty clip to your pursuers, you might damage their business, you might damage their business, you might worry them into ill-health, you might hurt them as much as they have hurt you, but, after all, it is not worth while. You only have hurt a bound. Better be off for the Upper Saranac, into which the mountains of God's eternal strength look down and moor their shadows. As for your physical disorders the work strepthing way. shadows. As for your physical disorders, the worst strychnine you can take is fretfulness, and the best medicine is religion. I know people who were only a little disordered, yet have fretted themselves into complete which the strategies of the strength of the strength cine is religion. I know people who were only a little disordered, yet have fretted themselves into complete valetudinarianism, white others put their trust in God and came up from the very shadow of death, and have lived comfortably for 25 years with only one lung. A man with one lung, but God with him, is better off than a Godless man with two lungs. Some of you have been for a long time sailing around Cape Fear when you ought to have been sailing around Cape Good Hope. Do not turn back, but go ahead. The deer will accomplish more with its swift feet than with its horns.

I saw whole chains of lakes in the Adirondacks, and from one height you can see 30, and there are said to be over 800 in the great wilderness. So near are they to each other that your mountain guide picks up and carries the boat from lake to lake, the small distance between them for that reason called a "carry." And the realm of God's word is one long chain of bright, refreshing lakes; each promise alake, a very short carry between them, and though for ages the pursued have been drinking out of them, they are full up to the top of the green banks, and the same David describes them, and they seem so near together that in three different places he speaks of them as a continuous river, saying. There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God." "Thou shalt make them drink of the rivers of thy pleasures." "Thou greatly enrichest it with the river of God, which is full of water."

But many of you have turned your it with the river of God, which is full of water."

But many of you have turned your back on that supply, and confront your trouble, and you are soured with your circumstances, and you are fighting society, and you are fighting a pursuing world, and troubles, instead of driving you into the cool lake of heavenly comfort, have made you stop and turn round and lower your head, and it is simply antler against tooth. I do not blame you. Probably under the same circumstances I would have done worse. But you are all wrong. You need to do as the reindeer does in February and March—it sheds its horns. The Rabbinical writers allude to this resignation of antlers by the stag when they say of a man who ventures his money in risky enterprises, he has houng it on the stag's horns; and a proverb in the far East tells a man who has foolishly lost his fortune to go and find where the deer shed her horns. My brother, quit the antagonism of your circumstances, quit misanthropy, quit complaint, quit pitching into your pursuers; be as wise as next spring will be all the reindeer of the Adironpursuers; be as wise as next spring will be all the reindeer of the Adirondacks. Shed your horns:

But very many of you who are wronged of the world—and if in any wronged or the word—and it many assembly between Sandy Hook. New York, and Golden Gate, San Francisco, it were asked that all those that had been sometimes badly treated should raise both their hands, and full response should be made, there would be twice as many hands lifted as persons present—I say many of you would declare: "We have always done the best we could and tried to be useful, and why we should become the victims of malignment, or invalidism, or mishap, is inscrutable." Why, do you not know, that the finer a deer, and the more elegant its proportions, and the more beautiful its bearing, the more anxious the hunters and the hounds are to capture it? Had that roebuck a ragged fur and broken hoofs, and an obliterated eye, and a limping gait, the hunters would have said: "Pshawi don't let us waste our ammunition on a sick deer." And the hounds would have given a few sniffs of the track, and then darted off in another direction for better game. But when they see a deer with antlers lifted in mighty challenge to earth and sky, and the sleek hide looks as if it had been smoothed by invisible hands, and the fat sides enclose the richest pasture that could be nibbled from the bank of rills so clear they seem to have dropped out of heaven, and the stamp of its foot defies the jack-shooting lantern and the rifle, the horn and the hound, that deer they will have if they must needs break their neck in the assembly between Sandy Hook, New York, and Golden Gate, San Fran-

The third son took the vase of clay, and, opening it, found it empty, but on the bottom of it was inscribed the name of God. King Nimrod asked his courtiers which vase they thought weighed the most. The avaricious men of his court said the vase of gold. The poets said the one of amber. But the wisest men said the empty vase, because one letter of the name of God outweighed a unisaid the empty vase, because one letter of the name of God outweighed a universe.

For Him I thirst; for His grace I beg; on His promise I build my all. Without Him I cannot be happy. I have tried the world and it does well enough as far as it goes, but it is too uncertain a world, to evanescent a world. I am not a prejudiced witness. I have nothing against this world. I have been one of the most fortunate, or, to use a more Christian word, one of the most blessed in my parents, blessed in the place of my nativity, blessed in my health, blessed in my femily, blessed in my opportunities, blessed in a comfortable livelihood, blessed in the hope that my soul will go to heaven through the pardoning mercy of God, and my body, unless it be lost at sea or cremated in some conflagration, will lie down in the gardens of Greenwood among my kindred and friends, some already gone and others to come after me. Life to many has been a disappointment, but to me it has been a pleasant surprise, and yet I declare that if I did not feel that God was now my friend and ever-present help, I should be wretched and terror-struck. But I want more of Him. I have thought over this text, and preached this ser mon to myself, until with all the aroused energies of my body, mind and soul, I can cry out: "As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after Tnee, O, God."

Through Jesus Christ, make this God your God, and you can withstand anything and everything, and that which affrights others will inspire you. As in time of earthquake, when an old Christian woman was asked whether she was scared, answered, "No; I am glad that I have a God who can shake thought over this text, and preached this sermon to myself, until with all the aroused energies of my body, mind and soul, I can cry out: "As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after Thee, O, God."

Through Jesus Christ, make this God your God, and you can withstand anything and everything, and that which affirights others will inspire you. As in time of earthquake, when an old Christian woman was asked whether she was scared, answered. "No; I am glad that I have a God who can shake the world;" or, as in a financial panic, when a Christian merchant was asked if he did not fear he would break, anwared "Year, I shell head; rehe with all the sould break, anwared "Year, I shell head; rehe with all the coming solemnity in his opening becoming solemnity in his opening poem; then follows a variety of house-nold information the housewife cannot afford to lose; "New September; "Housekeepers' Work for September; "New Things for Table and Kitchen"—all by that famous authority on things untires" this month abound in instructive information. "Our Cooking Club," "A Dictionary of French Terms Used glad that I have a God who can shake the world;" or, as in a financial panic, when a Christian merchant was asked if he did not fear he would break, answered, "Yes; I shall break when the fiftieth psalm breaks in the fifteenth verse: 'Call upon me in the day of trouble; I will deliver thee and thou shalt glorify me.'" O. Christian men and women, pursued of annoyances and exasperations, remember that this hunt, whether a still hunt or a hunt in full cry, will soon be over. If ever a whelp looks ashamed and ready to slink out of sight it is when in the Adirondacks a deer by one long, tremendous plunge into Big Tuppers, Lake gets away from him. The disappointed canine swims in a little way, but, defeated, swims out again and cringes with humiliated yawn at the feet of his master. And how abashed and ashamed will all your earthly troubles be when you have dashed into the river from under the throne of God, and the heights and depths of heaven are between you and your pursuers. We are told in Revelations, 22:15: "Without are dogs," by which I conclude there is a whole kennel of hounds outside the gate of heaven, or, as when a master goes in a door, his dog lies on the steps waiting for him to come out; so the troubles of this life may follow us to the shining door, but they cannot get in. "Without are dogs," I have seen dogs, and owned dogs, that I would not be chagrined to see in the heavenly city. Some of the grand old watch-dogs who are the constabulary of the homes in solitary places, and for years have been the only protection of wife, and child; some of the shepherd dogs that drive back the wolves and back away the flocks from going toon hear the precipiec; and some of the dogs whose neck and paw Landseer, the painter, has made immortal, would not find me shutting them out from the dogs whose neck and paw Landseer, the painter and the American house the precipiec; and some of the dogs whose neck and paw Landseer, the painter and the Portfolio is this month devoted to an amusing sketch.

We all know with what interest the whole country read the Personal Memoirs of Grant and the Personal Memoirs of Sherman, and we believe that the Personal Memoirs of "Little Phil" will attract equal attention and command as large a sale. His memoirs have the value of an important historical production, and the interest of a great work of fiction. The book is not statistical, but full of personal incidents, and the wonderful story which it tells holds the reader spellbound. It is a clear, concise, graphic and yet simple account of a wonderful life. It was penned not only because he desired to tell the story of his own life in his own way, but with the hope that his family might receive a competency from its sale. For some time past light sleepers in Los Angeles have had their slumbers disturbed by a rumbling noise, which nebody has hitherto been able to account for. It has been variously attributed to an incipient earthquake, the street-sweeping machine and the odorless excavator, but the true cause of this mysterious disturbance is nov explained. It was disclosed by the Trombone "on yesterday" in its editorial columns as follows:

We guarantee a large edition of this issue, making it a specially good number for advertisers to use, as it will bring their notices to the attention of thousands of new readers, both at home and abroad.

Rates for single insertions of display advertisements — pages, half-pages, quarter-pages, columns, half-columns, inches, squares and lines-will be given by application at the counting-room, or will be furnished by the solicitors.

We propose to give our regular advertisers-those faithful and reliable friends who have stood by THE TIMES through thick and thin-the benefit of a circulation at least double that of the regular daily run, without any advance in the advertising rates for this special issue.

Here is a fine opportunity for business men-and especially those realestate "stayers" who are here on the ground, "large as life and twice as natural," waiting for the return of the boom, which is only a little way offto secure a large constituency of new readers, for thousands of copies of our ODD FELLOWS' ILLUSTRATED EDI-TION will go far and wide, east, west, north and beyond the seas.

The Times-Mirror Company performs what it promises, and it promises that the forthcoming special issue shall be a large, attractive and valuaable one.

Barkis Is Willin'-His Observations.

The long-protracted agony is over The anxiety of the American people, lately risen to fever heat in waiting for that letter which "cometh not, she said," has at length been relieved. No longer shall American citizens be compelled to pass the hours of night wearily tossing upon their uneasy couches and picturing to themselves the chaos which would overtake this unfortunate country in case the big Buffalo man should decline to guide its destinies and veto its pension bills for another four years. These fears are removed, and a long-drawn sigh of relief will go up from sixty millions of Americans as they learn that Grover is willing to accept the awful responsibilities and small emoluments of a second term.

The epistle of Mr. Cleveland to Mr. Patrick Collins and others shows unmistable evidences of a protracted wrestling match between the President, Dan Lamont, Webster's Dictionary, the Constitution of the United States and the Polite Letter Writer. The opening sentences of this remarkable missive present such a peculiar combination of insipid platitudes and incomprehensible syllogisms as are seldom encountered outside of the editorial columns of the Trombone. We frankly admit our inability to appreciate or even fully comprehend them. and therefore pass them over in judicious silence. With the ready tongue of a guilty conscience, the President hastens to call attention to the danger which lunks in undue generosity to the widows and orphans of the country's defenders.

Coming down to the tariff business much stress is laid upon the grinding extortion under which the people suffer through the present tariff. The letter endeavors to show that all protected articles of manufacture cost the American purchaser far more than they should, whereas it has been shown, over and over again, in the course of tariff discussion, that a large proportion of such articles are as cheap, if not cheaper, in the United States, than in England, many such articles, in fact, being exported from this country. The stale and mouldy chestnut about a surplus is again trotted out, and Mr. Cleveland has the effrontery to quote this as amounting to $130,000,000, when every intelligent reader of the newspapers is by this time aware that it will not amount to more than 10 per cent. of that sum. A querulous reference is made to the anparent indifference, if not favor, of farmers and others to "the unnecessary volume of insidious and direct taxation visited upon them by our present rate of tariff duties." The surplus: we are informed, constitutes a "separate and independent menace to the prosperity of the people." Then why not apply it to useful and necessary purposes such as the irrigating of our arid plains and the improvement THE fitness of the bandana as a labor to American citizens and enwere a deficit, there would be somewonder the party feels at home with it. over, is it not a patent truth that reduced duties would stimulate imports and so increase the snrplus, instead of diminishing it? The proposal to remedy the exagger ated evil of an exaggerated surplus by opening our markets to free competition with the underpaid labor of less fortunate countries is one which not appeal to the good sense of intelligent Americans. High tariff, we are told in this letter. makes the rates of wages paid in this country "uncertain." Under the country "uncertain." Democratic system, it is true, that there would be no uncertainty about wages. They would certainly be uni-Other journals of at least formly low, but whether such certainty would be satisfactory to American workingmen is another question. By extending the markets for our manufacturers, Cleveland proposes to "promote steady employment of labor." That is, where a hundred American workingmen now make good wages and raise their families in comfort, tbree hundred underpaid men would be permitted to emulate the efforts of European workers to solve the problem of how to keep body and soul together and die outside of the workhouse. The "unutterable hatred" of trusts which this letter expresses is not confined to the Democratic party, and cannot be claimed as a virtue peculiar to the Democracy, being shared by rightthinking no of all shades of political opinion, excepting only such persons as are directly benefitted by these aggregations of capital. The claim for the Democracy of "a jealous regard for the interests of American labor" is one which is far more easily made than proved. Actions speak louder than words, and the actions of the Democracy, judged by their tariff scheme tend-directly to the destruction of American labor.

Not a word is said by the President regarding the fisheries question, the Chinese question, or any other questions affecting the welfare of the country. Nor does the great Buffalo statesman attempt to explain why, even if the tariff must be reduced as much or more than the Democrats propose, it is essential to the welfare of the country that southern products and manufactures should be carefully let alone, while articles in which the North is specially interested are slaughtered.

The letter is, from first to last, a labored defense of what the writer evidently realizes is an unpopular and disastrous position. It is the of a special pleader, who feels that his case is already virtually decided against him. It throws no new light upon the subject it deals with, nor will it carry any conviction to wavering voters.

The only noteworthy feature of the missive is the practical acceptance of the tariff question as the predominant issue of the campaign—the issue upon which the battle is to be waged. This admission cannot but be highly satisfactory to Republicans. Demo cratic organs will have to take their cue from the President's letter, and, dropping such side issues as the fishery and Chinese questions, confine themselves to the problem of gilding the Mills Bill and persuading Ameri can voters that it is the sort of medi cine which they need to save them from impending dissolution.

Who Will Be Disappointed.

Patrick Ford, speaking in his Irish World of the demoralized condition of the Democratic forces, and the almost certainty of the success of the Republican candidates, says: "There is one consolation in all this, that those who will be disappointed most by Cleveland's defeat will be those who deserve the least of the country. They who sought during the present generation to dismember the Nation will be disappointed, but those who fought to maintain its integrity will rejoice Those who believed in slave labor, and now oppose free labor's right of association, will consider Cleveland's defeat a calamity, but those whose prosperity and means of livelihood depend upon the great manufacturing interests of the country, will regard it as a national danger averted. The watchful competitor, England, who sought to destroy the Nation, will feel aggrieved, but the American people will prosper all the more, because of the defeat of free trade, and the discomfiture of this country's enemies.

There is truth in those ringing utterances of Mr. Ford. There is not a man or a section of the country that was arrayed against the Government in the war of the rebellion whose vote will not be counted for Grover Cleve land in November. He represents not only northern democracy, but southern disloyalty, a sentiment which today, while not as universal, is yet as active in some sections of the Southern States as it was during the war of rebellion. The oppressors of the black manevery one of them who would overpower him at the ballot-box and robhim of his constitutional rights as a citizen of this Republic—will vote for Cleveland. But the loyalty of the country, the friends of labor, the educated, the industrious and clear-signted patriots will vote for Benjamin Harrison.

But the loyalty of the country, the friends of labor, the educated, the industrious and clear-signted patriots will vote for Benjamin Harrison.

The total loss is now estimated at $1.000. as it was during the war of rebellion. rison.

THERE is nothing that Cleveland is so anxious about now as his political machine: but the $10,000 he has spent to keep it in running order is but a drop in the bucket to the sum that will be required to keep it running. The a furnace free tariff addition will require any amount of lubricating, and then the people will pronounce against it. the rock on which the party will go down.

By Telegraph to The Times.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9.—[By the Associated Press.] A disastrous fire broke out this afternoon in the sash and door factory of Day, Huber & Crocker, on Main street. The entire fire department of the city was called out. The fire is only new under control. The burnt district embraces two whole blocks which were entirely con-sumed, and three blocks which are almost a total loss. The loss at present is estimated at $1,250,000. Seldom in the history of San Francisco has the fire department been called upon to make war with such furious and unmanageable flames as those which caused a general alarm to be sounded shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon When the firemen arrived on the spot the

THE INFLAMMABLE MATERIAL stored in the factory, and by the time water from the hose had commenced pouring into the building, the roof had caved in and the flames were crackling above. South of Day, Huber & Crocker's factory was the three-story frame building occupied by the National Iron Works, owned by Marshuz & Cantrall. The flames quickly caught the iron works and ate up the building. The heat was so intense that the water was warm before it left the hose, while the roar and crackle of the flames were almost deafening. From the iron works the fire swept on, its devastating course across Main street to Nos. 117 and 119, which were occupied by

THE NOVELTY IRON WORKS,

THE NOVELTY IRON WORKS, of which George H. Mixer is proprietor, and the Union Fence Company, of which D. D. Mayers is chief owner.

A changing wind swerved the fire to the northeast of the lumber yards, and after threatening the rear of some saloons and tenement houses on Howard street, between Main and Spear streets, it traveled to the southwest corner of Mission and Spear streets, destroying on its way Joseph Wagner's Millwright and Machiney Factory, the American Tool Works, the Ætna Iron Works and Eureka Boiler Works.

THE INTENSE HEAT caused the one-story frame building on the northwest corner of Spear and Mission northwest corner of Spear and Mission streets to catch fire next. It was occupied as a saloon, restaurant and lodging-house, and in a few minutes it was swept from existence, the occupants barely escaping with their lives, saving but little of their worldly received.

On Mission street, east of Spear, the On Mission street, east of Spear, the lames sprang from house to house until they reached the west side of East street, where further progress of the fire was stayed by the employés of the Narrow Lauge Railroad, who were out in force with the company's hose, playing heavy streams of water on the blazing timbers.

FROM SPEAR STREET TO THE BAY. On its course from Spear street to the bay the flames consumed all the buildings on the south side of Mission street and half on the south side of Mission street and nair way down to heaved street, a few buildings on the north side of Mission street, from Spear to the water-front, also failing victims to the destroying element. The conflagration was one of the most furious the department ever handled, and had it not been for the noble service rendered by the Oakland and Alameda firemen the loss would have been much greater.

would have been much greater.

An enormous crowd of people, which An enormous crowd or people, which blocked every passageway and gave the police much trouble, aided the fire by impeding the firemen in their work. The scorching, which was well nigh unbearable a block from the center of the fire, caused several persons to succumb, and it was a common sight to see ladies, firemen and spectators being borne to places of satety.

were numerous. Next door to the factory in which the fire started was the factory of in which the fire started was the factory of A. J. Nicoll & Co., elevator works business. The entire place was destroyed in a remarkably short time. Several firemen who were standing on a balcony built out from the wall were warned before it fell by a hoarse cry of terror from thousands of people in the street who saw their danger, and the menmanaged to save themselves from an awful death by imming from the balcony awful death by jumping from the balcony to the street, a distance of about 20 feet. They escaped with nothing more serious than a severe shaking up.

LOSSES AND INSURANCE. Among the principal losers are the National Iron Works, $130,000, insurance, $30,-Novelty Iron

The total loss is now estimated at $1,000, 000 with an insurance of $200,000. The fire 000 with an insurance of $200,000. The fire swept the blocks running east from Main street to the bay and bounded on the north by Mission and on the south by Howard streets. The blocks on opposite side of Howard and Mission streets were also partly consumed.

The fire is supposed to have started from a furnace. About 2000 men will be thrown out of employment. Very many of the buildings were old and deemed of too little value to insure.

value to insure.

One man suffered death from the flames, and two more were severely burned.

At all the wharves extending south from the ferry landings every berth was occupied when the fire broke out. There were of the crafts. Up till 2:45 o'clock no one n the street nearest the wharf though not more than one or two menon board any of the crafts. Up till 2:45 o'clock no one on the street nearest the wharf thought there was any danger that the fire would extend to the lumber-yards fronting on that thoroughfare, but as the fiames rapidly spread eastward the masters and owners of vessels tied up to the wharves became alarmed and every man who could be induced to take hold was pressed into service. Very little damage, however, to shipping resulted. The wharves between Market and Folsom streets were covered with articles of all descriptions. They were principally carpenters' and caulkers' tools of great variety and vaine, and long canvas "kits" belonging to seafaring men, which had been either rescued from boarding-houses or taken from vessels by careful owners. Several large safes were also among the miscellaneous exhibits.

THE CASUALTIES. John Taylor, while assisting firemen, had the corner of Tkird and Beacon streets, the fire was prevented from spreading further in that direction. The next buildings consumed by the devouring element were the residences of A. Ross, J. L. Curl and J. Bloomer, which were quickly consumed, with their entire contents. Mr. Sepulveda sustains the principal loss, having just completed

VIEWING THE FIRE Thousands of people tonight have crowded the streets and climbed the hills to view the fire. The crowds swarmed over paranets on Telegraph Hill, the masonry parapets on Telegraph Hill, and all eyes were directed toward the scene of the confiagration. The whole southern horizon was illumined by the dull glare of the subsided flames. The burned district from the hill looked like a the darkness of night with most striking effect.

The firemen, although terribly exhausted by their fearful exertions of the afternoon, were nevertheless as busy as bees, running here and there, dragging after them great lengths of heavy hose, as they sought out places where the flames, if not subdued, threatened to cause more mischief. On those blocks where the fire hid swept from existence all that had obstructed its path were heaps of blazing rubbish, to which the firemen paid little attention, preferring to concentrate their efforts on those places where danger threatened.

THE BLUNDERING TROMBONE.

A Scaly Dissertation Upon a Scaly subject—Editorial "Fungous,"
The Tribune said "on yesterday:"

The Tribune said "on yesterday:"

"It has looked for more than a year past as though Southern California were doomed to lose one of her most important industries and one of her most important industries and one of her most important industries and one of her most prominent attractions, through the depredations of the scale bug. Orange and lemon culture in this part of the State have been for a long time, together with viticulture, the staple industries; and the fruits have flourished here as they have flourished nowhere else but in Sicily and other Mediterranean countries. But one day there arrived from Australia, whence they had been imported, a number of orange trees. They were handsome trees, and seemed to be, healthy and vigorous. It was noticed, however, that upon the leaves of some of them there were little white specks, which, upon investigation, proved to be fungous—like lumps of something resembling cotton."

The white scale has been in these parts about nine years. It is not a "fungous." It did not come here on orange-trees, but on the Australian eucalyptii. It is not "a little white speck," but it is a small bug, with a gray-colored scale, shaped much like a turtle-shell, and the white, cotton-like cushion pushes itself out from under the scale when the bug is hatching, and is full of eggs. Four years ago a crusade was commenced against "the beast" in this city, which has thus far proved to be a failure. The Trombone should wake up, read up, and take a microscope and examine a few trees around town.

The Death Boll Steadily Growing Larger at Jackheads with Rallway Officials in HILLIARDSVILLE (Ala.), Sept. 9.-[By the Associated Press.] A fearful battle between whites and blacks took place here yesterday in which seven colored men were killed. The trouble grew out of the fact that a white man refused to allow his well to be longer used by a crowd of "protracted meeting negroes." One of the negroes expressed the determination to have some of the water and the white man drew a pistol and shot him in the neck. That night a gang of negroes visited the house and dared the white man to come out, but he refused to do so; after shooting holes in his windows and doors they left. On the next night a gang, presumably friends of the white man, visited the negro camps and left seven dead bodies as a reminder to other members of the camp-meeting crowd.

The President's Labored Apology for His Unpop bled with Misstatements-Is This the Best You Can Do, Daniel?

By relegraph to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9. -[By the Associated Press.] Following is the President's tter of acceptance:

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.

Hon. Patrick A. Collins and Others, ommittee-Gentlemen: In addressing to you my formal acceptance of the nomina-tion to the Presidency of the United States, my thoughts persistently dwell upon the impressive relation of such action to the American people, whose confidence is invited, and to the political party to which I belong, just entering upon the contest for continued supremacy. The world does not ford a spectacle more sublime than is furnished when millions of free and intelligent American citizens select their chief magistrate, and bid one of their number to find the highest earthly honor and full measure of publicity in a ready submission to their will. It follows that the candidate for this high office can never forget that when the turmoil and strife which the election of its incumbent shall be heard no more, there must be, in the quiet calm which follows, a complete and solemn self-consecrating by the people's chosen Presi-dent of every faculty and endeavor to the service of a confiding and generous Nation of free men. These thoughts are intensified by the light of my experience in the Presidential office, which has soberly impressed me with the severe responsibilities which it imposed, while it has quickened my love for American institutions and ught me the priceless value of the trust of my countrymen. It is of the highest importance that those who administer our Government should closely pro tect and maintain the rights of American citizens at home and abroad, and should strive to achieve for our country her proper place among the nations of the earth.

There is no people whose home interests are so great and whose numerous objects of domestic concern deserve so much watch-fulness and care; among these are the regulation of a sound financial system suited to our needs, thus securing ap efficient agency of national wealth and general prosperity; construction and equipment of means of defense to insure our national safety and naintain the honor beneath which such national safety reposes; the protection of our national domain, still stretching beyond the needs of the country's expansion, and its preservation for the settler and pioneer of our marvellous growth; the sensible and sincere recognition of the value of Ameri-can labor, leaving to the scrupulous care and just appreciation of the interests or our workingmen the limitation and check such monopolistic tendencies and mes as interfere with the advantages and benefits which the people may rightfully claim; a generous regard and care for our surflying soldiers and sallors, and for the widows and orphans of such as have died, to the end that while appreciation of their services and sacrifice is quick, the ap-plication of their pension funds to improper cases may be prevented; protection against servile immigration which injures the in-dustry and commerce of our laboring men in the field of toil, and adds to our population an element ignorant of our institutions and laws, impossible of assimilation with our people, and dangerous to our peace and welfare: the strict and steadfast advance of thorough execution of laws passed for citizens and people who are soberly considpeople and channels of trade. Some of

and in a friendity spirit, considered. Even such reliance upon present revenue arrangements as have been invited or encouraged should be fairly and justly regarded. Abrupt and radical changes which might endanger such enterprises and injuriously affect the int-rests of labor dependent upon their success and continu-ance are not contemplated or intended, but ance are not contemplated or intended, but we know that the cost of our domestic manufactured products is increased and their price to consumer enhanced by the duty imposed upon the raw material used in their manufacture. We know that this increased cost prevents the sale of our productions at foreign markets in competition with those countries which have the advantage of free raw material. We know that confined to the home market, our manufac-

THUSTS AND COMBINATIONS.

TRUSTS AND COMBINATIONS.

The platform adopted by the National Convention of our party contains the following declaration: Judged by Democratic principles, the interests of the people are

THE OLD TARIFF TALK. Our Government is a creation of the established to carry out their defounded on justice, and was made for a free, intelligent and virtuous people. It is only useful when within their control, and only serves them well when regulated and guided by their constant touch. It is a free government, because it guarantees to every merican citizen the unrestricted personal ase and enjoyments of all rewards of his toil, and of all his income, except what may be his fair contribution to the necessary public expense. Therefore, it is not only the right, but the duty, of a free people to en-force this guarantee and insist that such expense should be strictly limited to actual ublic needs. It seems perfectly clear that y a people to do their bidding on them and, through an utter per ris upon them and, through an utter per-rision of its powers, extorr's from their la-rand capital a tribute largely in excess the public necessities, the creature is rebelled against the creator, id masters are robbed by their rivants. The cost of the Govern-ent must continue to be met by tariff du-ess collected at our custom-houses upon im-ported goods and by internal revenue taxes ties collected at our custom-houses upon imported goods and by internal revenue taxes assessed upon spirituous and malt liquors, tobacco and ole-margarine. I suppose it is needless to explain that all these duties and assessments are added to the price of the articles upon which they are levied and thus become a tax upon all those who buy these articles for use and consumption. I suppose, too, it is well understood that the effect of this tariff taxation is not limited to consumers of imported articles, but that the duties imposed on such articles permit a corresponding increase in the price to be made upon domestic productions of the ported raw materials, which by the employment of labor are used in our home manufactories, thus extending the markets for their sale, and permitting an increased and steady production with an allowance of abundant profits. True to the understaing course of the Democratic party, we will not neglect the interests of labor and our workingmen. In all efforts to remedy the existing evils we will furnish no excuse for the loss of employment or the reduction of the waxes of honest toil. On the contrary we propose in any adjustment of our revenue laws to concede such encouragement and advantage to the employers of domestic labor as will easily compensate for any difference that may exist between the standard of wages which should be paid to our laboring men and the rate allowed in other countries. We propose, too, by extending the markets for our manufacturers, to promote the steady employment of labor, while by cheapening the cost of the necessaries of life we increase the purchasing ower of the worker's wages and add to the comforts of his home. And, before passing from this phase of the question, I am constrained to express the opinion that, while the interests of labor should be always sedulously regarded in any modification of our tariff laws, an additional and more direct and efficient protection to these interests would be afforded by the restriction and prohibition of the immigration or importation of laborers from other countries who swarm upon our shores, having no purpose or intent of becoming fellow-citizens or acquiring any permanent interest in our country, but who crowd every field of employment with unintelligent labor at wages which ought not a satisfy those who make claim to American citizenship.

The Jaform adopted by the National a corresponding increase in the price to be made upon domestic productions of the sane kind, which increase is paid by all our people as consumers of such productions, and, entering every American home, constitutes a form of tax as certain and inevitable as though the amount was annually paid into the hands of the tax-gatherer. These results are inseparable from the plan we have adopted for the collection of revenue by tariff duties. They are not mentioned to the discredit of the system, but by way of preface to the statement that every million of dollars collected at our custom-houses for duties upon imported articles and paid into the public tressury represents many millions more, which, though never reaching the national treasury, are paid by our citizens as increased cost of domestic productions resulting from our tariff laws. Under these circumstances, and in view of this necessary effect of the operation of our plan for raising revenue, the absolute duty of limiting the rate of tariff charges to the necessities of a frugal and economical administration of the Government seems to be perfectly plain. The continuance, upon the pretext of meeting public expenditures, of such a scale of tariff-taxation as draws from the substance of the people a sim largely in excess of the public needs, is surely something in which a government based upon justice, and which finds its strength and usefulness in the faith and trust of the people, ought not to be tolerated. While the he vy burdens incident to the necessities of the Government are uncomplainingly borne, light burdens become grievous and intoterable when not justified by such necessities. Unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation, and yet this is our condition. We are annually collecting at our custom-houses and by means of our internal-revenue taxation many millions in excess of all legitimate public needs. n domestic productions of the which increase is paid by all our

the national treasury a surplus of more than one hundred and thirty millions of dollars. No better evidence could be furnished that the people are exertificated by this surplus with be better appreciated when it is suggested that such surplus alone represents taxation aggregating more than one hundred and eight thousand ollars in a country containing fifty thousand inhabitants. Taxation has always been the feature of organized government the hardest to reconcile with the people's ideas of freedom and happiness. When presented directly nothing will arouse popular discontent more quickly and profoundly than unjust and unnecessary taxation. Our farmers, merchants, laborers, and all our citizens closely sean the singhest increase in taxes upon their land and other property, and demand good reason for such increase, and yet they seem to be expected in some quarters to regard the unnecessary volume of insiduous and indirect taxation visited upon them by our present rate of tariff duties with indifference; if not with favor The surplus revenue now remaining in the treasury not only furnishes conclusive evidence of unjust taxation, but its existence constitutes a separate and independent menace to the prosperity of the people. This vast accumulation of idle funds represents that much money drawn from the circulating medium of the country, which is needed in the channels of trade and business. It is a great mistake to suppose that the consequences which follow the continual withdrawal and hoarding by-the Government of the currency of the people are not of immediate importance to the mass of our citizens, and only concern those engaged in large innancial transactions. In the restless enterprises and activity which free and ready money among the people produce is found that opportunity for labor and employment, and that impetus to business and production which bring in this train prosperity to our citizens in every station and vocation. New ventures, new investigents in business and munifacture, the construction of new an combinations have always been condemned by the Democratic party. The dectaration of its National Convention is sincerely made, and no member of the party will be found excusing the existence or belitting the pernicious results of those devices to wrong the people. Under various name made, and no member of the party will be found excusing the existence or belittling the pernicious results of those devices to wrong the people. Under various names they have been fostered by the common law for hundreds of years, and they have lost none of their features because they have assumed the name of trusts instead of conspiracies. We believe that these trusts are the natural offspring of markets artificially restricted, that an ordinarily high tariff, beside furnishing temptation for their existence, enlarges the limit within which they may operate against the people, and thus increase the extent of their power for wrongdoing. With unuterable hatred of all-such schemes, we count the checking their hateful operations among the good results promised by revenue reform. While we cannot avoid partisan misrepre sentation, our position upon the question of revenue reform should be so plainly state as to admit of no misunderstanding. We have entered upon no crusade of free-trade platform. What we seek to inaugurate is predicated upon the utmost care for established industries and enterprises, jealous regard for the interests of American labor, and a sincere desire to deliver the country from the injustice and danger of a condition which threatens evil to all people of the land. We are dealing with no imaginary danger. Its existence has been repeatedly confessed by all political parties and pledges of remedy have been made by all. Yet, when in the legislative body, where, under the Constitution, all remedial measures applicable to this subject must originate, the Democratic majority were attempting, with extreme moderation, to redeem the pledge common to both parties, they were met by determined opposition and obstruction, and the minority, refusing to cooperate in the House of Representatives or propose another remedy, have remitted the redemption of their party pledges to the doubtful power of the Senate. The people will hardly be deceived by their abandonment of the field of legislative action to the field of legislative action to the field of legislative action and flippantly declare in their party platform that our conservative and careful effort to relieve the situation is destructive to American industries under protection; nor will the people be misled by the appeal to prejudice contained in the absurd allegation that we have the interests of Europe, while they will support the interests of Europe, while they will support the interests of Europe, while they will support the interests of Turney, while they shall tend to check the importation of such articles to neariy or quite the prohibitory points, they confess themselves willing to travel backward in the road of civilization and to deprive our people of the markets for their goods, which can only be gained and kept by a semblance at least of an interchange of business, while they abandon our consumers to the unrestrained oppression of domestic trusts and combinations, which are in the same of severe terms for its use. Increasing distrust and timidity is followed by refusal to loan or advance on any terms. Investors refuse all risks and decline all securities, and in the general fright the money still in the hands of the people is persistently hoarded. It is quite apparent that when this perfectly natural, if not inevitable, stage is reached, depression in all business and enterprise will as a necessary consequence lessen the opportunity for work and employment and reduce the salaries and wages of labor. Instead, then, of being exempt from the influence and effect of an immense surplus, lying idle in the national treasury, our wage-earners and others who rely upon their labor for support are mostly of all directly concerned in the situation. Others, seeing the approach of danger, may provide against it, but it will find those depending upon their daily toil for bread unprepared, helpless and defenseless. Such a state of affairs does not present a case of idleness resulting from disputes between the laboring man and his employer, but it produces an absolute and enforced stoppage of employment and wages. In reviewing the bad effects of this accumulated surplus and the scale of tariff rates by which it is produced, we must not overlook the tendency toward gross and scandalous public extravagances which a congested treasury induces, nor the fact that we are maintaing without excuse, in a time of profound peace, substantially the rate of tariff duties imposed in a time of war, when the necessities of the Government justified the imposition of weightiest burdens upon the people. that, if after the changes already mentioned there still remains a larger revenue than is requisite for the wants of the Government, entire internal taxation should be repealed rather than surrender any part of our protective tariff. Our people ask relief from the undue and unnecessary burden of taxation now resting upon them. They are offered instead people and channels of trade. Some of these devices are at variance with all rules of good finance, some are delusive, some-absurd and some betray by their reckless extravar nee the demoralizing influence of a great surplus of public money upon the judgments of individuals. While such efforts should be made as are consistent with public duty and sanctioned by sound judgment to avoid the danger by a useful disposition of the surplus now remaining in the treasury, it is evident that if its distribution were accomplished another ac-FREE TOBACCO AND FREE WHEISY.

They ask for bread and they are given The implication contained in this party's declaration, that desperate measures are justified or necessary to save from ures are justified or necessary to save from destruction or surrender what is termed "our protective system," should confuse no one. The existence of such a system is entirely consistent with the regulation of the extent to which it should be applied, and the correction of its abuse. Of course, in a country as great as ours, with such a wonderful variety of interests, often leading in entirely different directions, it is difficult, if not impossible, to settle upon a perfect tariff plan, but in accomplishing the reform we have entered upon, the necessity disposition of the surplus now remaining in the treasury, it is evident that if its distribution were accomplished another accumulation would soon take its place if the constant flow of redundant income was not checked at its source by reform in our present tarrif laws. We do not propose to deal with these conditions by merely attempting to satisfy the people of the truth of abstract theories, nor by alone urging their assent to a political doctrine. We present to them the propositions that they are unjustly treated in the extent of the present federal taxation; that as a result a condition of extreme danger exists, and that it is for them to demand the remedy, and that defense and safety promised in the guarantees of their free government. We believe that the same means which are adopted to relieve the treasury of its present surplus and prevent its recurrence, should cheapen to our people the cost of supplying their daily wants. Both of these objects we seek in part to gain by reducing the present tariff rates on the necessaries of iffe. We fully appreciate the importance to the country of our domestic industrial enterprises. In the rectification of existing wrongs their maintenance and property should be carefully, and in a friendly spirit, considered. Even such reliance upon present revenue arrangements as have been invited or perfect tariff plan, but in accomplishing the reform we have entered upon, the necessity of which is so obvious, I believe we should not be content with a reduction of revenue involving a prohibition of importations, and the removal of the internal tax upon whisky. It can be better and more safely done within the lines of granting actual relief to the people in their means of living and at the same time giving an impetus to our domestic enterprises and furthering our national welfare.

If misrepresentations of our purposes and If misrepresentations of our purposes and motives are to gain credence and defeat our present effort in this direction, there seems to be no reason why every endeavor in the future to accomplish revenue reform should not be likewise attacked and with like result, and yet no thoughtful man can fail to see in the continuance of the present burdens of the people and the abstraction by the Government of the currency, the country's inevitable distress and disaster.

All danger will be averted by timely action. The difficulty of applying the remedy will never be less, and the blame should not be laid at the door of the Democratic party. Or, if it is applied too late, should not be laid at the door of the Democratic party. Or, if it is applied too late, with a firm faith in the intelligence and patriotism of our countrymen, and relying upon the conviction that misrepresentation will not influence their prejudice, will not cloud their understanding, and that menace will not intimidate them, let us urge the people's interests and public duty for a vindication of our attempt to inaugurate a righteous and beneficent reform.

Peggy had always been taught to do what she was asked without urging, if it was the right and proper thing to do, and so she folded her little dimpled and so she relap, looked with smiling eyes away to the land, and then she began to sing with a voice that Little Boy Blue thought was the sweetest that he had ever heard:

Pretty boat, pretty boat sailing on the deep,
The soft winds run to meet you breathing perfumes sweet;
Sailaway, sail away to the sunset land, Where beside its golden gaiden gates the haipy fairles stand
O, waves with silver crest that play about our

You hold a thousand voices all calling to me And, looking in the water, I see the mer-maids hair. Like golden drifts of seaweed, float round us everywhere.

At this Little Boy Blue came over to At this Little Boy But Came over to the side of the boat where Peggy was sitting, and, looking down into the water, he was sure that there were mermaids there, but that they had dived down into their deep sea-caverns; dived down into their deep sea-caverns; for they caught a musical murmur from the waves which, he told Peggy, was the echo of their song as they sported in their hidden caves.

By and by they came to a land which was fairer than any that they had seen. Trees were growing along the shore, and beautiful songbirds filled all the air with the most delightful melody. They could catte the odor of the orange bloom, and see the golden bells of the oranges amid the trees. Splendid palms grew upon the plains, and ange bloom, and see the golden constant of the oranges amid the trees. Splendid palms grew upon the plains, and bananas waved their long branches as if they were beckoning them to come inland. Afar across the water rose the crest of a lovely isle. But as they sailed onward they came to where a river entered into the sea, and its banks looked very lovely and fair, and the birds sang sweeter than any that they had before heard.

"O, that river of beautiful water!" exclaimed Peggy, "where do you suppose that it comes from?"

Then Little Boy Blue stood up in his boat and looked away over the fair country, and at last he said down with a smile upon his face as he said:

"I know from whence this beautiful river flows. It is one which is fed by great mountains yonder which rise up as if they would touch the sky. And when it has gathered its waters it comes flowing down through beautiful canons and past the hills where the wild poppies bloom. And beyond its banks grow orange orchards and palms, and great vineyards heavy with the grape. And fragrant lilles grow by thousands in the heart of the land; and in them I am told that the souls of little babies sleep, and sometimes you can hear sheep, and sometimes you can hear them sing, as the soft south wind wakens them from their happy dreams. This river will lead us into the loveliest sunset land, where the City of the Angels is built, and where there are wondrous gardens and fruits. Shall I turn my heat up the river and the the wondrous gardens and fruits. Shall I turn my boat up the river, and see the beautiful land of which we have heard?"

Then Peggy answered, with delight,
"Yes, we will go to the City of the Ah, here is another nice letter fram our little friend who lives in Induada, and she has many pleasant things to tell us, and among others she explains to us the mystery of that $15,000 bed which we wondered so much about before. It is all very plain now, and we are glad, indeed, to know that she escaped the robbers so safely and that she was the means of saving all that money. Just read her story, children:

UNION CITY, Ind., Aug. 29, 1888.

Dear Mrs. Otis: You cannot believe how glad I was to see my long letter in the Mirror of July 28th. Pa said you would never print my letter, but when he saw it he laughed, and I know you would have laughed as much as any of us if you had been here and seen my little sister Rox as she got a pencil and a piece of paper and wrote a letter to you. My big brother said you could car, and if we had been robbed and his comfort not been touched, he would divide with us to the amount of our loss, if it had taken half what he had. I have forgotten the gentleman's name, but he said he was a lumber dealer from Wisconsin. If he should see this he may think all about it. We are all well, and hope you are the same.

Your true little friend.

I shall be delighted to get dear little Roxie's picture, and not less pleased to receive that of my pleasant correspondent's. I hope this will find Roxie's poor little face quite well, and that I shall hear from you all again.

KERNVILLE, Aug. 31, 1888. KERNVILLE, Aug. 31, 1888.

Dear Mrs. Oits: I have been thinking I would write to the MIRROR again for a long time, for I was very much pleased when I saw my letter of June 18th published. School will start in a week and a half, and then my letter writing will be done for a while, as we have to walk a mile and do most of the morning work before we start. I have only one thing more for our column this week. It is a nice little poem from a new contributor to our column. Here it is.

BONNIE BRAE.
The beautiful hills so sweet and green.
The lake so blue that can be seen
From Bonnie Brae that beautiful spot,
"Tis neither cold or neither hot."

The breezes cool from the ocean come, Over the h lls the children run To the dear old felks which brings such joys, To watch their dear girls and boys. So now I have named it the golden way When you enter on the Bonnie Brae.

And when from our fond sight it parts On time's unwelcome wave. Still, still shall linger in our bearts Our love for Bonnie Brae. Composed by Mabel Kencall, aged 12 years.

Well, now, good-by, my boys and girls, for this week. You have done nobly, and I thank you. E. A. O.

COMPANIONSHIP THE NEED IN THE HOME LIFE.

ome Valuable Notes - A Love for Real Knowledge-Olympian Gods-Astronomy for Children- & Child's Ambition—Parental Helpers—The Needs of Childhood

Companionship is the great need in the home life—warm, intimate, sympathetic companionship. But in how few families is this found. It usually rests with the mother to see that this is established. I am very much in vor of systematic methods in regard to the disposition of the evenings at ome. I like the plan of setting apart at least three evenings out of the seven to a course of reading which parents and children may take up to-gether. History should not be neglected, biographies should not be overlooked; books of travel should be taken up; political economy should be studied, and facts of science should be taken up; political economy should be studied, and facts of science should be the theme of pleasant evening talks familiar alike to parents and children. In the work of educating the child parents should have no small share. If the parents possess cultivated intelligence, they may make smooth many a pathway of knowledge that would otherwise prove very thorny and difficult to the child.

In my early childhood, mathematics were a terrible bugbear to me. The rule of three and the mystery of fractions I never fully solved until I became acquainted with algebraic mathematics. Grammar, for a time, was like a confusion of tongues to me, but my mother partially smoothed out all its vexatious difficulties, while my father helped me solve the abstruse mathematical problems. It was the home influence that helped me to whatever scholarly attainments I achieved, and which quickened my ambition to excel. I well remember my juvenile desire to be able to converse intelligently with "grown-up" people on the various themes discussed in the nile desire to be able to converse intelligently with "grown-up" people on the various themes discussed in the family circle. At 10 years old how intently I pored over Milton's "Paradise Lost," and over the wonders of "Pilgrim's Progress." Then came the Early History of New England," which stirred the most intense patriotic emotions and pride in my native State, and later studies in astronomy, when I could have sat up contentedly all emotions and pride in my native State, and later studies in astronomy, when I could have sat up contentedly all night to hear my mother tell of the glory and the wonders of the starry skies. These home talks made me a ready student of science when I took it up at school. Never was there delight so great for me as when I could study the moon through my teacher's telescope, or trace out the starry constellations. The stories of mythology but deepened my interest and quickened my fancy. What were the light and foolish fictions of today compared with those marvelous tales of the past? Olympian gods were realities, each teaching some great lesson. Such a wide field of interest and of research was opened to my childish cognizance that I could not be indifferent to knowledge. Hour by hour would we sit at our mother's knee while she rehearsed to us some story of the past, or some page of science, till we were fully awake to the delights of study and eager to "know as much as mother knows" of the world about us.

I think these first years of life are of the greatest value. Not that I would confine the children in the schoolroom, but I would make the mother the teacher and the historian, and nature the great text book for their study. Quicken the mind of the child, stir it the great text book for their study. Quicken the mind of the child, stir it to action, then give it the proper food for thought and it will grow health-fully and intelligently. It may have such a love for real knowledge that it will have no taste for the pernicious literature, the baneful influence of which is so widely felt among the youth of the present day.

NOTES. To Make Raspherry Jam. — Weigh equal proportions of fruit and sugar, put the fruit in a preserving kettle, with a little currant juice, one pint to six quarts of beiries, mash the berries as they cook, using a silver or wooden spoon. Let it cook well before adding the sugar, after which boil 10 or 15 minutes.

minutes.

A Tempting Sandwich is made by chopping a slice of raw beef very fine with a slice or two of raw onions or some green leeks. Tde beef and onions must be so fine and so blended that nobody could tell it was an uncooked morsel. Spread rye bread thinly with butter and put a good layer of the prepared beef between.

To Blanch Sweet breads or Kidneys.— Put the article in cold water over the fire, and when it boils take it out and plunge it into cold water for the second time, and let it so remain until cold. This gives plumpness and whiteness Tongues are said to be blanched when, after long boiling, the skin can be peeled off.

peeled off.

Apple-pie.—Make your pie as usual, adding your spice and a little salt, and then bake. Put your sugar in a tin, and water enough to make a syrup; let it cook, and when you take your pie from the oven insert a small funnel in the pie and pour in the syrup hot, and you have a moist, finely-seasoned apple-pie, without any juice in the oven.

Use Lemons.—A safeguard against much prevalent summer illness lies in the free use of lemonjuice. Citric acid helps to supply the place of the fluids which are unduly dissipated through the pores of the skin in hot weather. Eat plenty of lemons and war can stand plenty of lemons, and you can stand the heat infinitely better than those who do not make use of the fruit.

who do not make use of the fruit.

To Remove Rust from Fine Steel Instruments.—Mix ten parts of tin putty, eight of prepared buck's-horn and 25 of alcohol to a paste. Cleanse the article with this, and finally rub with soft blotting-paper. You can preserve them by a coat of colorless lacquer. A gun can be cleaned by stopping the opening and pouring in mercury, which, on shaking, will clean up the barrell. Then coat with parraffine.

Sweet Rose Jar Scents.

[New York Mail.]

A delightful perfume for halls and parlors in dwelling houses or hotels can be easily procured at this season of the year, and it is such a pure, yet delicious odor that it charms every one. It is simply a rose jar, which should be opened for about one hour every morning and then carefully closed. A writer in an English contemporary describes the best method for stocking the jar, and, in doing it, suggests that the preparation of the rose stock should be detailed to the care-taking member of the family who never member of the family who never forgets anything. Gather the rose petals in the morning; let them stand in a cool place; toss them up lightly for one hour to dry, then put them in layers, with salt sprinkled over each layer, in a large covered dish—a glass butter dish is a convenient receptacle. You can add to this for several mornings till you have enough stock—from one pint to a quart, according to the size of the jars stir every morning, and let the whole-stand for ten days. Then transfer it to a glass fruit jar, in the bottom of which you have placed two ounces of allspice coarsely ground and as much stick cinnamon broken coarsely. This may now stand for six weeks, closely covered, when it is ready for the permanent jar, which may be as pretty as your ingenuity can devise, or your means purchase. Those with double covers are the best, and very pretty ones in the blue-and-white Japanese ware, holding over a quart, can be

Have ready one ounce each of cloves, allspice, cinnamon and mace, all ground (not fine), one ounce of orris root, bruised and shredded, two ounces of lavender flowers and a small quantity of any other sweet-scented dried flowers or herbs. Mix together, and put into a jar in alternate layers with rose-stock and a few drops of oil of rose, geranium, or violet, and pour over the whole one-quarter pint of geod cologne. This will last four years, though from time to time you may add a little lavender or orange-flower water, or any nice perfume, and some seasons a few fresh rose petals. houses are set low enough for children and dwarfs.

In the matter of tennis-blazers, mustard color may be said to have drawn the affections of the men. White straw sailor hats are having run that astonishes the girl who said they were going out of fashion. A correspondent comments upon the many pink tulle bonnets seen on the heads of ladies at Newport out driving. Newest of the summer dresses of thin white material are elaborately shirred, and make one sympathize with the modiste.

The veil is now worn longer with the round hat and falls below the chin. A new gauze for veils is called "Narragansett fog," Archery increases in fashionable favor all along the country lines, and there are very few well-kept lawns now without a target. Hammock clocks are made of wood and have a hook and clasp at the back to fasten them on the hammock where the lounger can see them. No woman who is stout should ever venture outside her own bedroom in a tea gown, which is eminently a gar-ment for the "ethereal girl."

Gold-wire rings and gold-wire bangles and bracelets are now very much the fashion, jewelers saying the style developed in the most remarkable

Seersucker as a dress material has now become almost too cheap to be fashionable, and there is reason to be-lieve that sateen will ere long have had its day, too.

Ornamental hairpins become larger and more elaborate as the season ad-vances and the girls of the period find out how well they look in this porcu-pine style. Grecian headbands of tor-toise shell are also fashionable.

The Bituminous Lime Rock Paving and Improve

The Bituminous Lime Rock Paving and Improvement Company

Take this opportunity of informing the citizens and property-owners of this city that the pavement laid on Main street, between First and Third streets, is not bituminous lime rock, but is an artificial mixture, and not laid by our company. We make this announcement for the purpose of disabusing the minds of those who entertain the belief that this pavement was laid by this company, and are disposed to criticise our material as being soft and not suitable for the streets of this city. The only bituminous lime rock pavement here was laid by this company, and extends on Main street from the south line of Third to Ninth street, and on Spring street from Temple to Ninth street. Bituminous lime rock does not become soft and mushy under the heat of the sun, but always remains firm and elastic. We have already laid on the streets of this city about 500,000 square feet of this pavement, to which we take pleasure in invitual in the streets of this city about 500,000 square feet of this pavement, to which we take pleasure in invitual in the streets of this city about 500,000 square feet of this pavement. We have used Dr. Flynn's Blood Purifier for the norse and his Maud'S. L'niment for about two years. These medicines have been constantly in use for the treatment of indisposed lame, bruised or otherwise injured animals. They have been found efficacious, certain and indispensable, and have relieved the company of the expense attached to the employment of a veterinary surgeon. We would not be without them and cheerfully recommend them to the owners of horses. E. M. Loricke, Succrintendent.

the police station, where he was locked up.
Miss Crook, the sister of Mrs. Parker, the unfortunate woman who became insane while crossing the desert and was taken to the County Jail, arrived from San Diego Saturday night, and at once went to the jail, where sife remained until last night, when she returned home, taking her sister with her. Mrs. Parker has not shown any improvement since her confinement, and did not recognize her sister when she saw her, but as she is not violent, there is probably no danger in allowing her to go with her relative. It was learned that Mrs. Parker has had one or two attacks prior to this one and has recovered with carfeil treatment.

The Los Angeles Mannerchor, which for some time past has had in preparation the opera, The Haunted Bridge, gave their first drass rehearsal at the Grand Opera-house yesterday afterneon, with full orchestral accompaniment, acquitting themselves very creditably indeed. The first public performance will be given at the Opera-house next Sunday afterneon. This opera is one of the most pleasing of its class in the German language, and will be produced under the direction of Fred Borneman, stage manager, and Prof. A. Stamm, musical director, both gentlemen having worked hard to make it a success. The rehearsal yesterday afternoon passed off very smoothly, the performers going through their parts like old veterans, and reflected great credit on their instructors.

the auspices of the Golden Gate Club. The Mission Uniformed Club and the Liberty and National Clubs-attended in a body.

Maj. Dorney made a lengthy speech, in which he arraigned the Democratic party on its record for free trade. Then alluding to the ever-living Chinese question, he attacked the records of past Democratic Legislatures and judges on that issue, and read lengthy extracts from their records to establish the correctness of his position. He exposed President Cleveland's attitude toward the Chinese, and proved by his own words that he was their friend. He scored the Democratic party as not being what it professed to be—a friend of labor—and measured its professions by its acts. His speech was an able argument for the Republican cause.

An Explanation.

What is this "nervous trouble" wit. which so many seem now to be afflicted? It you will remember a few years ago the word malaria was comparatively unknown—today it is as common as any word in the English language, yet this word coversonly the meaning of another word used by our forefathers in times past. So it is with nervous diseases, as they and malaria are intended to cover what our grandfathers called billousness, and all are caused by troubles that arise from a diseased condition of the liver, which, in performing its functions, finding it cannot dispose of the bile through the ordinary channel, is compelled to pass it off through the system, causing nervous troubles, malaria, billou, fever, etc. You who are suffering can well appreciate a cure. We recommend Green's August Flower. Its cures are marvelous.

PROTECT OUR BREAD.

The machinery of the law cannot be put at work too speedily or too vigorously against the wholesale adulteration of the things we eat. Both the health and the pockets of the people demand protection.

There is no article of food in general use more wickedly adulterated than the lower grades of baking powder.

These baking powders contain either lime, which, introduced into the system in too free quantities, causes serious disorders of the kidneys; alum, a corrosive poison, or lime phosphates and sulphates, which are condemned by physicians as deleterious in their effect when taken under certain physical conditions.

For raising bread, biscuit or other food only the very best and purest baking powder should be employed.

The absolute purity of the Royal Baking Powder makes it pre-eminently the most useful and wholesome leavening agent known. Containing no lime, alum, phosphate or other impurity, it leaves no alkaline or acid residuum in the food, and its use insures pure, light and sweet bread, biscuit and cake, that are perfectly digestible and wholesome whether hot or cold, fresh or stale. Its leavening power has been determined the highest whenever tested by official authority, and all chemists and writers on food hygiene commend it for its sterling qualities.

The sale of adulterated baking powders has been prohibited by statute in several localities. It will be in the interests of the public health when their sale is made a misdemeanor every where, and the penalties of the law are rigidly enforced.
